

Making a difference for future healthcare

Opragon is now pre-approved in California, US and ready for smooth integration in new projects. The ultraclean operating room ventilation system has received pre-approval from the State of California's Healthcare Access and Information HCAi (formerly OSHPD). Read all about the approval here.

If you have a passion to fight infections and provide better environments for staff while also wanting to expand your business, then this article is for you. It shares how Medexs, a leading Dutch supplier of solutions for clean healthcare spaces, was able to win a large part of the market based on the introduction of Opragon. In the last five years, they have installed more than 70 Opragon systems in leading hospitals and clinics across the Netherlands. They have investigated the customers' needs for a robust, safe, and energy-efficient solution to ensure ultra-clean air in operating rooms intended for infection-sensitive surgery. Together with Avidicare, some very innovative solutions were also developed, such as for MRI rooms and hybrid rooms with large ceiling-mounted imaging systems. Read more about our partner Medexs and Dutch healthcare in our blog.

Earlier this year we joined Q-bital on their first-time roadshow in Sweden! For two weeks we visited eight different cities in southern Sweden, to show the modular concept of Q-bital, and to demonstrate Opragon ventilation system, and its adaptability for both surgical modules and buildings.

It was a true privilege to meet so many of you on the road, and to get the chance to hear more about your daily struggle and obstacles, and how we together can create an ultra-clean and modern medical facility.
